Farm, Garden and Live Stock Items,

APPROVED, February 24, 1882.

If you begin pruning fruit and ornamen-tal trees and shrubbery while young, and follow it up each year, you can form just such a top as you want. If your trees need spreading out, cut the young shoots off just above a bud on the outside of a shoot, and if you want to train upward, leave a bud on the upper side of the limb where you

Experience and observation will convince any one that better results will follow the the application of manure at the surface, or at least within three inches of it, than if plowed under to three times that depth. For immediate results all well-rotted manure should be immediately mixed with the surface soil by repeated cultivations or

The London Live Stock Journal gives two methods of starting a balky horse; "First, tire your steed out by remaining perfectly quiet until he starts of his own accord. Second, when a horse refuses to draw at all, put him in a cart in a shed and keep him there until he walks out. In one instance the obstinate one was thirty hours in the shafts before he gave in."

A Missouri paper notes that "the sheep interest and the sheep-killing dog interest are as antagonistic as fire and water. The two cannot exist together. One or the other must go. The sheep is always a valuable animal in every section adapted to its nature and habits. The sheep-killing dog is not valuable in a community where sheep are kept. When the domesticated dog forsakes his civilized habits and returns to those of his nacestor, the wolf, he ought to be treated as a wolf. So far as he is a midnight marauder upon the shepherd's flocks, he ought to be trapped, shot or poisoned, in any way that is most convenient to the sheep owner."

It is stated that 2,252 women are engaged in farming in the State of Indiana. It has not been reported how successful they are, but it is hardly to be expected that if the first thousand had failed, that the second thousand would have gone into the busi-

Grape vines in the open air, on arbors and trellises, should have their pruning finished before warm spring days set in or they will bleed. It does not injure them much, but it looks bad. The pruning must be regulated by the condition of the vine. If the vines are young and the shoots weak, cut them all back to make a new and vigorous growth.

Quinby, the well-known writer on beecultuae, says of catnip for bees: "If there is any article that I would cultivate especially for honey, it would be catnip. I find nothing to surpass it." This is high anthority, and ought to entitle this common but little utilized product of nature to a place among the valuable things of the farm. It is but another instance that goes to show that our people fail to utilize the native resources of their farms as they should. They have not learned the value of the things they tread upon and often ruthlessly destroy.

An exchange gives the following statement of an orchard successfully pastured by sheep and hogs: "The orchard occupies thirty-two acres, and is made the run of thirty-two acres, and is made the tun the thirty hogs and 150 or 200 sheep and lambs during the Summer. Enough grain or bran or given them to place them in good condition. They eat every blade of grass and green things close down, and every fallen apple as soon as dropped, for which pur-pose sheep are better than hogs, which sleep so soundly as not to hear an apple fall, but sheep are always on hand and devour everysheep are always on hand and devour every-thing as soon as it touches the ground. The fruit each year grows fairer, with fewer wormy specimens, and the manure, from feeding so much grain, has given a healthy growth to the trees. To prevent the animal gnawing the bark the trunk is washed over once a month with a mixture of soapsuds, whale oil and sheep manure."

Sheep and Goats. There has suddenly sprung up an old idea of protecting sheep against dogs by adding a goat or two in the flock to drive the dogs a goat or two in the flock to drive the dogs away, etc. But this has hardly made its appearance before it is contradicted. A gentleman of Washington writes in a New York paper that it will not be tried more than once. He trained a pair of Angora goats (a buck and ewe) on one occasion to range with triasheep for the latter's protection; but the "buck could jump any fence in the county, and could climb any tree growing in the corner of a rail fence by first getting on the fance and then into the tree. In quite a short time every wether I had In quite a short time every wether I had was as good a jumper as the Angera buck, and had I not converted them into mutton I would have had a valuable flock of sheep rules. Kill the dogs but keep the sheep and goods separate here as well as hereafter."

AN ACT to define the right of parties engaged in running timber, and for other purposes.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Legisla-ture of the State of Mississippi, That if any person or persons shall put or cause to be put into any navigable river within, or upon the boundary line of, this State, or into any creek or stream within this State, or shall have in any such river, creek or stream any logs, lumber or timber for any purpose, and shall not make adequate provision and put on sufficient force for driving or running the same, or for breaking blocks or jams of such logs, timber or lumber in or upon such river, creek or stream, or shall for want of adequate provision or want of sufficient force, allow such logs, timber or lumber to jam or accumulate or form in blocks, thereby obstructing the navigation of such river, creek or stream, and thereby obstructing the driving or running of logs on such river, creek or stream, then and in that event it shall be lawful for any person or persons having logs, timber or lumber in such river, creek or stream, the driving and running of which is so prevented or obstructed, to cause such block or jam to be broken, and such logs, timber or lumber to be driven, boomed, rafted or run at the expense of the person or persons owning such logs, timber or lumber, and such owner shall be liable to such person causing such blocks or jams to be broken, and such logs, timber or lumber to be driven, boomed, rafted or run, for all the costs and expenses thereof, causing such blocks or jams to be broken, and for all the costs and expenses incurred for driving, booming, ratting and running such logs, timber or lumber, which shall be and constitute a lien superior to all other liens on said logs, timber or lumber, against such owner, and all other persons who may have actual notice thereof, for the inforcement of which the party entitled as aforesaid to such lien, shall be entitled to take and retain possession of such logs, timber, or lumber, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount of such charges for breaking such jams or blocks and for driving, booming, rafting and running of said logs, timber or lumber, and expenses and costs thereon, until the same shall be satisfied and paid.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That any person or persons having a lien upon logs, timber or lumber, under the provisions of the first section of this act, may proceed to enforce the same by selling such timber at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, upon giving at least twenty days notice of the time, place and terms of sale by posting notices thereof in three public places in the county, where said sale shall take place; provided, that the owner of the logs, so to be sold, shall have at least ten days notice in writing of the time and place of sale, and of the sum of money which shall be due for the costs, charges and expenses aforesaid. And the purchaser at such sale shall, upon payment of the amount bid by him, take such logs, timber or lumber so purchased by him at such sale, free from all liens or claims whatsoever. SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That this act take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

WITH ADDITIONAL STOCKHOLDERS AND A NEW DIRECTORY, THIS COMPANY presents to the People of Mississippi the cheapest and most reliable LIFE INSURANCE name World. Passing successfully through the never-to-be-forgotton Yellow Fever Epidemic of 1878 and 79, paying all its enormous losses consequent thereon, notwithstanding its descrition by hunreds of Policy-Holders, it has risen Phoenix like, and stands to-day upon a basis solid and nduring. It is essentially a Home Institution and composed of Business men of the highest haracter, integrity, and responsibility, who have staked their money and their reputation on is success and they cannot afford to fail.

The Company is always ready to pay all losses immediately upon the necessary and satisactory proofs of death being made, and will liquidate all legitimate claims at a moment's nce without quibble or equivocation. No Company in the World offers a safer investment.
